

A SHOE SALE.

To meet the unprecedented demand for Tan Oxfords this season we have been obliged to carry an enormous stock. Our inventory just taken shows that we still have practically complete assortments of the most desirable styles. Since our store policy permits of no carrying over of unseasonable goods from one year to another, and in order positively to insure a quick clearance of these lines we announce a sale on all of our light weight summer shoes.

CHAPTER XL.

THE SON OF THE ROYAL ARCHITECT.

MARCH and April had passed and now it was the 1st of May. Five days before the ceremony of installation had been held for the market and the capbearers, and for four days thereafter the new officers passed through initiatory formalities. But on the fifth day the rites of investiture had been brought to an end, and Mentu and Nechutes entered on the routine of service.

To Mentu fell the dignified congratulations of his own world of sedate old nobles and stately women, but Nechutes was younger and well beloved by youthful Memphis, so on the night of the fifth day the house of Senet was aglow and in her banquet room there was much young revel in his honor.

Aromatic torches flaring in scones lighted the frieze of lotus, the painted paneling on the wall and the clustered pillars that upheld the ceiling of the chamber. The tables had been removed, the musicians and tumbler common to such occasions were not present, for the rout was small and sufficient unto itself for entertainment.

Gathered about a central figure, which must needs be the one of highest rank—and in this instance it was Rameses, the crown prince—were the young guests. They were noblemen and gentlewomen of Memphis, freed for an evening from the restraint of pretentious affairs and spared the awesome repression of potentates and monitors.

Hoteb was host, and these were his guests.

First, there was Rameses, languid, cynical, sumptuous and enthroned in a capacious fauteuil, significantly upholstered in purple and gold.

Close beside him and similarly enthroned was Ta-user. She wore a double robe of transparent linen, very fine and clinging in its texture. The overdress was simply a white gauze, striped with narrow lines of green and gold. From the fillet of royalty about her forehead an emerald depended beneath the breast, encompassing her again about the hips and fastened at last in front by a diamond shaped buckle of clustered emeralds. Her sandals were mere jeweled straps of white gazelle hide, passing under the heel and ball of the foot. She was as daintily dressed as a lissom dancing girl.

On a taboret at her right was Seti, the little prince. Although he was nearly sixteen, he looked to be of even tenderer years. In him the charms of the Egyptian countenance had been so emphasized and its defects so reduced that his boyish beauty was unequalled among his countrymen.

At his feet was Io, playing at dice with Ta-mori and Nechutes. Ta-mori was more than usually brilliant, and Nechutes, flushed with her favor, was playing splendidly and rejoicing beyond reason over his gains.

prince's world he was the only one that could tell the truth to Rameses, and tell it without offense.

On the floor between Masanath and Menes was the son of Amen-mes, the Prince Siptah. He was a typical oriental, bronze in hue, lean of frame, brilliant of eye, white of teeth, intense in temperament and fierce in his looks and hates. Religion comforted him through his appetites. In his sight craft was a virtue, intrigue was politics and love was a fury. His eyes never left Ta-user for long, and his every word seemed to be inspired by some overweening emotion.

Aside from these there were others in the group. Some were sons and daughters of royalty, cousins of the Pharaoh's sons and of Ta-user and Siptah; many were children of the king's ministers, and all were noble.

Send and Hoteb's older sister, the Lady Bettis, a dark eyed matron of thirty, presided in diadem-like guardianship over the rout. They sat in a diphras apart from the young revelers.

Kenekes was momentarily expected. For the past two months he had been seen every evening wherever there was a social revel in Memphis. But he had laughed perfunctorily and lapsed into preoccupation when none spoke to him, and his song had a sorry note in it, however happy the theme. But these were things apparent only to those that saw deeper than the surface.

"Where is Kenekes?" Menes demanded. "Hath he forsaken us?"

"I saw him today," Nechutes ventured, without raising his eyes from the game, "when we were fowling on the Nile below the city. He was alone, pulling downstream, just this side of Masanath."

Hoteb frowned and gave over any hope that Kenekes would join the merry-making that night. But at that moment Ta-mori, who sat facing the entrance to the chamber, poised the dice box in air and drew in a long breath. The guests followed her eyes.

Kenekes stood in the doorway, the curtain thrust aside and above him. His voluminous festal robes were deeply edged with gold, but his arms, bare to the shoulder, and his strong brown neck were without their usual trappings of jewels. The omission seemed intentional as if the young man had meant to contrast the ornament of young strength and grace with the glitter and magnificence of the other guests. He had succeeded well.

Perhaps to most of those present the young man's presence was not unusual, but Hoteb was not blind to a manifest alteration in his manner. There was cynicism in the corners of his mouth and a hint of hurt or temper was evident in the tension of his nostrils and the brilliance of his eyes. Hoteb had no need of seers and astrologers, for his perception served him in all tangible things. He knew something untoward had set Kenekes to thinking about himself, and, guessing where the young artist had gone that evening, he hurried further how he had been received.

And, though he was sorry in his heart for his friend's unhappiness, he confessed his admiration for Rachel.

"Late!" cried Hoteb, rising. "Thy pardon, Hoteb," Kenekes replied, advancing into the chamber. "I had an errand of much importance to Masanath, and it was fruitless. It shall trouble me no more."

Hoteb lifted his brows as though he exclaimed to himself and made no answer. Kenekes greeted the guests with a wave of his hand and did obeisance before Rameses.

"Thou speakest of Masanath, my Kenekes," the crown prince commented after the salutation, "and it suggests an inquiry I would make of thee. Dost thou go on as sculptor, or wilt thou follow thy father into the art of building?"

"Since the Pharaoh chose for my father, he shall choose for me also."

"Nay, the Pharaoh did not choose," Rameses objected dryly. "It was I."

"For a truth? Then thou shalt choose for me, O my generous prince."

"Follow thy father, I would have thee for my market. Nay, it is ever so. I mold the Pharaoh, and he gets the credit."

"And thou the blame, when blame accrues from the molding," Menes put in very distinctly, though under his breath.

"But be thou of cheer, O son of the sun," Kenekes added. "When thou art Pharaoh thou canst retaliate upon thine own heir in the same fashion."

"Thou givest him tardy comfort, O son of Mentu," Siptah commented, with an unpleasant laugh. "He will lose all recollection of the grudge, waiting so long."

Rameses turned his heavy eyes toward the speaker, but Kenekes halted any remark the prince might have made.

"Nay, let it pass," he said placidly, dropping into a chair. "All this savors too much of the future and is out of place in the happy improvidence of the present."

"Let it all pass?" Ta-user asked. "Nay, I would hold the prince to the promise he made a moment ago when the choosing of the new market comes round again."

"Do thou so for me, then, when that time comes," Kenekes interrupted. "Ta-user laughed very softly and delivered the young artist a level look of understanding from her topaz eyes. 'I fear thou art indeed improvident,' she continued, 'if thou leavest thy future to others.'"

"Then all the world is improvident, since it belongeth to others to shape every man's future, but Hoteb, the lawgiver, denies this thing. He holds that every man builds for himself."

"Right, Hoteb!" Rameses exclaimed. "It was such belief that made a world conqueror of my grandsire."

"Nay, thy pardon, O my prince. Hoteb's counsel will not always hold," Kenekes objected.

"Give me to know wherein it fail-eth," the prince demanded.

"Alas, in a thousand things. In truth, a man even draws his breath by the leave of others."

"By the puny god, Harpocrates!" the prince cried, scoffing. "That is the weakest avowal I have heard in a moon!"

Kenekes flushed, and Rameses, recovering from his amusement, pressed his advantage.

"Let me give thee a bit of counsel from mine own store that thou mayest look with braver eyes on life. Take the world by the throat and it will do thy will."

"Again I dispute thee, O Rameses," "Name thy witness," the prince insisted. Kenekes leaned on his elbow toward him.

"Canst thou force a woman to love thee?" he asked simply.

Ta-user glanced at the prince and the sleepy black eyes of the heir narrowed.

"Let us get back to the issue," he said. "We spoke of others shaping the future of men. You may not force a woman to love you, but no love or lack of love of a woman should misshape the destiny of any man."

"That is a matter of difference in temperament, my prince," Ta-user put in.

"It may be, but it is the expression of mine own ideas," he answered roughly.

The lashes of the princess were smitten down immediately, and Siptah's canine teeth glittered for a moment, one set upon the other. Kenekes patted his sandals impatiently and looked another way. His gaze fell on Io. She had lost interest in the game. The color had receded from her cheeks, and now and again her lips trembled.

Kenekes looked and saw that Seti's eyes were adoring Ta-user, who smiled at him. With a sudden rush of heat he turned again to Io and watched till he caught her eye. With a look he laid down the dice during the momentary abstraction of her playing mates and, murmuring that she was tired, came and sat at the foot of her champion.

"Wherefore dost thou retreat, Io?" Ta-user asked. "Art vanquished?"

"At one game, aye!" the girl replied vehemently.

Kenekes laid his hand on her head and said to her very softly: "If only our pride were spared, sweet Io, defeat were not so hard."

The girl lifted her face to him with some questioning in her eyes. "Knowest thou aught of this game in truth?" she asked.

He smiled and evaded. "I have not been fairly taught."

Ta-user, sitting on the stakes, and Nechutes, collecting the dice, went to find her a seat. But while he was gone she wandered over to Kenekes and leaned on the back of his chair.

"Let me give thee a truth that seemeth to deny itself in the expression," Io said, turning so that she faced the young artist.

"Ray on!" he replied, bending over her.

"The more indifferent the teacher in this game of love the sooner you learn," said Io. Kenekes took the tiny hand extended toward him in emphasis and kissed it.

ON BATTLE FIELD

Russo-Jap Armistice Will Probably Be Concluded in Manchuria.

JOB FOR THE GENERALS

Pending Conclusion of "Treaty of Portsmouth" Oyama and Linkevitch Must Get Together.

An Alarmist View Has It That Tuesday's Great Work May Yet Be Repudiated.

Portsmouth, N. H., Aug. 31.—Actual work of drafting the "Treaty of Portsmouth," has begun. It is being done by Mr. De Martens and Mr. Dennison, acting as legal advisers for the respective sides. While the "bases" of peace have been accepted by the plenipotentiaries, its detail remains to be worked out in the elaboration of the articles of the treaty. This is especially true in relation to the articles dealing with the Chinese-Eastern railway and the surrender of the leases of the Liaotung peninsula and Port Arthur and Taitanwan (Dainy). Mr. Pokotiloff, the Russian minister at Pekin, who was formerly manager of the Russo-Chinese bank at Pekin, and who has intimate knowledge of all the details relating to those matters, is assisting Mr. De Martens.

A very anomalous situation exists as to the impression created by the conclusion of peace. While the outside world applauds, in Japan there is evidently great disappointment in the terms, and in Russia, where it would seem that there should be universal rejoicing over the great diplomatic victory Mr. Witte has won, the government seems to have received it coldly.

With the people it will make Mr. Witte a great and popular figure and add to his laurels, but at court evidently the very victory that Mr. Witte has achieved makes it all the more bitterly resented.

It is an open secret that when the emperor appointed Mr. Witte chief plenipotentiary, the "military party" expected him to fail. They did not want peace, and it was freely predicted in St. Petersburg when Mr. Witte left that he had been given an impossible mission.

They expected him to make a "bad peace," and either would have spelled political ruin. Instead, upon the very terms upon which the emperor told Mr. Meyer he would make peace and upon which the military party did not believe it possible for peace to be negotiated, Mr. Witte succeeded in securing a treaty honorable and, under the circumstances, favorable to Russia. This has evidently only exasperated his enemies the more, and intrigue is again at work to discredit him. Since Japan was in a conciliatory mood they now say he made a mistake in surrendering half of Sakhalin. Yet he did so by the czar's orders and himself insisted that personally he would have stuck to the end to his original declaration not to cede territory or give indemnity.

Not a word or line about the receipt of the news comes out of Japan. In view of the situation both at Tokio and St. Petersburg, alarmists are inclined to make much of the facts that the minutes of Tuesday's fateful meeting have not been signed by the plenipotentiaries of the two powers. It is pointed out that either side could still repudiate the agreement, but both plenipotentiaries refuse to admit the possibility of such a happening.

Where Japs Will Profit.

An important detail in regard to the conditions of peace is the fact that the formal recognition of Japan's possession of the Chinese-Eastern railroad below Kuenchenktse, the junction of the branch of Kirin, involves payment by Russia to China of a sum estimated at $75,000,000. This is the Chinese interest in the road, and for it China must be remunerated.

The question of the ultimate possession of the road is a matter to be settled between Japan and China. Japan can keep the road or surrender it to China, demanding in return the money paid by Russia to China. If she elects the latter course Japan will, therefore, obtain an indirect "spoils of war" from Russia the above mentioned sum in addition to reimbursement for the cost of maintaining the Russian prisoners of war, for which Japan will present an itemized bill. In addition to turning over the money obtained from Russia, China, if she took the railroad, would therefore have to reimburse Japan for the expenses incurred by her in restoring the road, rebuilding the bridges and changing the gauge. Both Russia and Japan, if the latter retains the road, are to be allowed to have "railroad guards" for the protection of the railroad property, and in case of disorder calculated to threaten their interest, are mutually to be permitted to send troops, but the number is in no case to exceed those recalled as soon as their mission is accomplished.

This likewise is a very important provision, and with the East and West Chinese Eastern line and the Southern line as far as Kuenchenktse still in Russia's possession, would, in case of a future issue, give her control of the largest part of Manchuria—the whole vast territory from the fertile valley to the Sungari, called the "granary" of the province, northward.

Another important provision is that Japan's access to the Port Arthur and Liaotung leases which Russia surrenders is conditional on Chinese assent.

The armistice has not yet been arranged, and it is not improbable that the armistice will be concluded directly by the generals on the field of battle.

WAR'S CESSATION

Russian War Office Asks Advice From General Rediger.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 31.—War Minister Rediger spent yesterday with Emperor Nicholas at Krasnoye-Selo, the big military camp near Peterhof. The war office has addressed a letter to General Rediger asking for instructions regarding the cessation of the present preparations to ship further troops to the front, and also regarding mobilization, but no answer has yet been received.

There is reason to believe, however, that General Rediger, after conferring with the emperor, sent a message to General Linkevitch concerning an armistice. It is impossible to learn just what the general said, but the war office is most desirous of averting any engagement which might result in needless loss of life. Several high naval officers have expressed regret and even dissatisfaction at the conclusion of peace.

Report of Last Battle.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 31.—A dispatch from Lidzianpudze contains the details of what will probably be the last engagement of the war. This encounter took place on Aug. 28 and resulted in an advantage to the Russians, who took 130 prisoners. A number of Japanese were killed. The Russian losses were eight killed. The remnant of the Japanese retired bearing their wounded.

Peasant Movement Growing.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 31.—At a meeting of 300 members of the intellectual classes of St. Petersburg at Terjoki, near here, one of the speakers described the peasant agitation in provinces of Saratoff and Samara, saying that there were tens of thousands of men supplied with arms and that an enormous peasant movement was being organized for the autumn.

Preparing for New Deal.

St. Petersburg, Aug. 31.—In view of the forthcoming electoral campaign, the police have drawn up regulations concerning meetings. The elections in Poland will be held simultaneously with those in the rest of the country enabling Poland to be represented at the first session of the national assembly.

TERSE TELEGRAMS

The Muscat dispute between Great Britain and France has been settled.

Mt. Vesuvius is in full eruption and is throwing out an enormous mass of lava.

A tornado struck Carbondale, Pa., and demolished several houses, but caused no fatalities.

Governor Douglas of Massachusetts will adhere to his resolution not to be a candidate for reelection.

It is expected that a commercial understanding will be the next result of peace between Russia and Japan.

Negotiations between the Swedish and Norwegian commissioners on the question of dissolution have begun at Carlstad.

President Roosevelt has signed the commission of Charles A. McGonagle of Indiana to be deputy auditor of the postoffice department.

The eclipse of the sun was observed under the most favorable conditions, and excellent results were obtained by all the scientific expeditions.

On the highest authority it is stated that there is a strong probability that President Roosevelt will receive the Nobel peace prize next year.

The Grand Rapids and Indiana railroad depot, several sawmills and many thousand feet of lumber were destroyed by fire at Levering, Mich.

A special meeting of the supreme council of the Royal Arcanum to hear protests relative to the recent advance on assessment rates is being held at Put-In-Bay.

Alfred Ray was instantly killed and William Blaine was shot during a row on a Louisville & Henderson train near Stephenson, Ky., at which place the two victims lived.

NOT OUT OF WOODS

President Roosevelt's View of the Situation at Portsmouth.

IN DANGER OF WRECK

Obstacles May Arise That Might Delay or Entirely Wreck Final Peace Negotiations.

Until Peace Is An Accomplished Fact President Says to "Whistle Softly."

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 31.—"Whistle softly—we are getting into the thin timber, but we are not yet out of the woods."

This homely admonition represents accurately President Roosevelt's view of the situation at Portsmouth. Peace is in sight, but yet is not an accomplished fact. Profoundly as he is gratified at the results already achieved by the plenipotentiaries, the president realizes fully that most important work remains yet to be done. Until that is accomplished it is scarcely the part of wisdom, he thinks, to do more than "whistle softly."

The president has no definite idea how long the plenipotentiaries may be engaged in the negotiations of the treaty of peace. He believes that it ought not to take a great length of time, because the points of difference having been resolved, the incorporation of the tentative agreement becomes practically a question of phraseology. The importance of the treaty is not minimized by the president, and he appreciates thoroughly that obstacles may arise at any moment that might delay seriously the negotiations, or possibly wreck them entirely. The woods will not be cleared entirely until the treaty is signed and sealed.

The place to be selected for the appending of signatures to the treaty raises a question of interest. It was assumed prior to the meeting of the conferees that the treaty, wherever it might be negotiated, would be signed in Washington and be known hereafter as the "Treaty of Washington," as the conference itself, although held at Portsmouth, is known as the Washington conference. It is proposed that the signing of the treaty take place at Sagamore Hill as a compliment to President Roosevelt for his part in initiating the conference and bringing it to a successful issue. The treaty then would be known as the "Treaty of Sagamore Hill," and would go down in history along with many other important conventions which have been concluded at places other than continental capitals. This question lies wholly with the conferees, and it is likely to remain undetermined until they practically have concluded their work.

Co-Operation Acknowledged.

Berlin, Aug. 31.—Emperor William has received the following cablegram from President Roosevelt in reply to his majesty's congratulations on the result of the peace conference: "I thank you most heartily for your congratulations and wish to take this opportunity to express my profound appreciation of the way you co-operated at every stage in the effort to bring about peace in the Orient. It has been a very great pleasure to work with you toward this end."

A Probable Outcome.

Washington, Aug. 31.—It is regarded here as probable that immediately upon the conclusion and final signature of the treaty of peace between Russia and Japan there will be a renewed effort to secure another meeting of The Hague conference in accordance with President Roosevelt's suggestion to the powers last spring.

Wreck in City Limits.

Augusta, Ga., Aug. 31.—City Policeman F. J. Murphy was killed outright; Flagman George J. Lott badly injured and died shortly after, and three others were slightly injured in a wreck on the Southern Railway passenger train on its way to Charleston, within the city limits.

Republican Pencil Pushers Will Gather at Broad Ripple.

Indianapolis, Aug. 31.—The fourth annual basket picnic of the Indiana Republican Editorial association will be held at Broad Ripple park here tomorrow. The editors and their families have enjoyed three delightful days at the same resort, and it is expected that tomorrow will be no exception. Over 150 members of the association have accepted invitations to be present. The basket dinner to be spread under the beautiful trees will be a great treat. The dinner will be the paramount issue, but there will be abundance of other entertainment for the visitors. Although the picnic has no political significance, the party leaders are always alive to every opportunity to strengthen themselves with the editors, and it is very likely that many of them will be on hand.

The friends of Congressman Frederick Landis of Logansport are considerably worried over the political situation in his district. It looks now as if there may be strong opposition to him. Dr. Charles Goode of Warren, who has attempted several times to get the nomination, is said to be laying his lines again. If he gets into the race it is likely that Jay Wood Wilson of Marion will also be a candidate, which would make a strong field for Landis to beat. If there should be a free-for-all scramble for the congressional nomination, it might stir up trouble for Elam Neal, district chairman, who expects to be re-elected without opposition. Neal, it will be remembered, won out last year after a bitter fight involving practically every party worker in the district, and it is said that many who opposed him then would welcome another chance to get his scalp. Under the circumstances the situation in the Eleventh will be watched with almost as great interest as ever before by the politicians.

The union barbers, who have been conducting a crusade to close shops on Sundays, score a big point when the board of public safety issued instructions to the police to see that none of the shops are open hereafter on the Sabbath. This action was in response to an appeal recently made by the unions to Mayor Holtzman. The Sunday closing movement has been agitated for a long time, but the local authorities up to this time have not manifested much disposition to enforce the law, although under it their duties are plain. The boss barbers have maintained that Sunday closing would lose them a lot of trade. The union members, on the other hand, insisted that the men were entitled to Sunday rest. Several cases have been tried and two or three times the courts have sustained the claims of the boss barbers that Sunday shaving is a necessity.

Governor Hanly is one of the very few officials at the statehouse who has not taken a summer outing. He has been busy with the state board of tax commissioners for nearly two months, but has found time to make a number of speeches. He says that he has no trips for pleasure planned for this year. The report that he proposes to remain in Indiana is correct. He has enlisted in a four years' campaign for better enforcement of the law, and it is very likely that he will not take many vacations. There have been fewer reports of law violations during the last two months than for some time, which is causing the governor's lieutenants to point out that his crusade is bearing fruit.

The minister who had difficulty in keeping his parishioners' eyes fixed on him during the sermon solved the difficulty by placing a large clock directly behind him.—Liverpool Mercury.

Children

Have "eyes bigger than their stomachs," according to an old saying. They overeat themselves, and are tempted by all sorts of injurious and indigestible edibles. As a consequence the foundation of serious stomach trouble is often laid in childhood.

For children with "weak" digestion or whose stomachs are diseased, Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery may be confidently recommended. It cures diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition, so that the nourishment contained in food is properly assimilated and the puny child is built up by food into a condition of robust health.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery contains neither alcohol nor narcotics. Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." There is nothing "just as good" for diseases of the stomach and other organs of digestion and nutrition.

Mrs. Ella Gardner, of Waterville, Middlesex Co., Va., writes: "My little daughter is enjoying splendid health. I am glad I found a doctor who could cure my child. Whenever she feels badly I give her Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and she is soon all right. She took twelve bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' eight bottles of 'Pell's,' and one bottle of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy and she is well. We thank God for your medicine."

Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, in paper covers, is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

SO FAR as heard from the Indiana fair this year are meeting with unusual success. The attendance was never better, the exhibits are above the average of past years and the races are excellent. And all this prosperity is being achieved without p. o. selling.

It is reported that when the rural carriers association met at Indianapolis last week the delegates listened to an address by a Mr. Ash, a representative of Sears, Roebuck & Co. and then partook of a banquet at his expense. Why this attention from a Chicago mail order house? The rural carriers will certainly do their duty, and we believe they will not discriminate against the home merchant.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT has received congratulations from all parts of the world over the result of the peace conference. All recognize that it was through him that peace was secured. He took the initiative and then prevented a disagreement. His wisdom and diplomacy won a remarkable victory for humanity. He is easily the foremost man of the world today. And just to think that this greatest champion of peace should have been characterized a year ago by the opposition as the man with the "big stick."

Circuit Court Cases.

The following new cases have been filed in the clerk's office since last report.

W. J. Wray vs. Mary S. Wray; divorce.

Mrs. Moon Dead.

Word was received here yesterday of the death of Mrs. W. G. Moon at St. Louis on August 29th. She was the wife of Will Moon, formerly of Seymour. Her daughter, Minnie, is well known here, where she used to live with her grandmother. Mrs. Andy Rinehart, who has since moved away. The cause of her death was not stated in the message.

Shot By Boy.

Albert Burkhardt, of Indianapolis, who is visiting in the family of Charles Krumme, who lives on the road to Reddingtown was the victim of the accidental discharge of a .300 bolt rifle in the hands of a little boy out there. He was shot through the abdomen, but the wounds though painful are most probably not very serious.

Attractions Coming.

Capt. J. T. T. Meier and children arrived this afternoon from Columbus, Ohio, and will put up their tent on the vacant lot on South Chestnut street immediately. This will be one of the star attractions of the carnival and the four children are very pleasing and promise a good performance.

Maud at Carnival.

In the window of the Cox Pharmacy are displayed some very good drawings by young Carl Reinhold. They are a series representing St. Paul's failure to take his mule Maud to the Seymour Carnival. The drawings are very well done and show considerable talent.

DIED.

BRUNER—The Franklin Star announces the death of James Bruner who lived in Seymour years ago. He was sixty years of age and was born in Madison county, Kentucky. He lived at Edinburg, Martinsville and Franklin after leaving Seymour.

Big Minstrels.

Hi Henry's minstrels came in this morning in two cars. At noon the parade was witnessed by many interested people. This is probably the largest minstrel troupe that ever came to Seymour. A crowded house is anticipated tonight.

Brakeman Charles Rogers whose head came in contact with the Miami river bridge near Cincinnati a few days ago, cutting a very severe gash in his head, is getting along nicely and went down to Logansport today.

R. S. McVeigh, division freight agent, was here last evening on business with Agent C. C. Frey.

Presiding Elder Baxter.

There will be quarterly meeting at the Methodist church next Sunday, and on Sunday night the Rev. J. M. Baxter, presiding elder for this district, will preside for the last time. He closes his term of six years when the conference meets at Linton, September 20, and it is altogether an open question as to who will succeed him. Rev. Baxter has been an ideal servant of the church during the six years he has held the charge and he has a multitude of friends all over the district.—Columbus Republican.

COURT-MARTIAL ORDERED

of the "charge of neglect of official duty," directs the court martial of Ensign Wade on the charge of "neglect of duty," and disapproves the court of inquiry's finding that the Bennington was "in an excellent state of discipline and in good and efficient condition." The action as to Commander Young was taken in view of the fact that the court of inquiry in its findings and opinion did not pass expressly upon his conduct and the question of his responsibility for the explosion.

Entered Into Suicide Pact.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Aug. 31.—"Good by. Death is preferable to life." These few words were the only clue to the reasons for the suicide at Gull Lake of William Todd and Ida Seibert, who a few days ago registered at the hotel as from Cincinnati. The couple left the hotel and, after walking along the shores of the lake, returned to the dock at Allendale, calmly walked toward the edge and then jumped in. With their arms clasped about each other. The keeper of a nearby boathouse threw a life preserver to them, but they made no effort to save themselves, and sank in fifty feet of water.

FOR OUTING WEAR.

Costume For a Fair Angler—A Good Automobile Coat.

The popular fancy for checks is exploited in sporting costumes, which are very effective, particularly in black and white. An attractive specimen is in the shape of a "knockabout" coat and skirt of neutral colored tweed with overcheck of green and brown and green suede facing the collar.

The coat, single breasted, as befits the moment, and close fitting at the back, has great shapeliness imparted by skillfully disposed, small stitched plaits, which serve to emphasize a similar treatment on the skirt. The waistband is passed through a slit in either side front; in fact, two slits are thoughtfully provided, the one farther back than the other. It is in these small details that the chic and style of such costumes lie.

A long coat has become almost a necessity, being equally suitable to driving, motoring and as the smart practical wrap for race meetings.

One of these very happy combinations of sense and style is fashioned

IN SMART, PRACTICAL STYLE.

In ivory tweed, relieved by black velvet collar facings, belt and buttons. The back defines the figure closely and is arranged with three seams, the velvet belt starting from the one at either side and passing beneath the loose fronts. For rough wear also the old doberman shape seems quite a favorite.

A smart new tennis shoe shows the latest almost triangular looking flat sole and a three-quarter inch spring heel and is made up in either white buckskin, white canvas or black or tan Russia leather.

The polo cap is a favorite among the motorists, especially as for long journeys the veil may be tightly wound around it. Small soft felt hats fit the head snugly and gracefully and fill a want not only on land, but as a steam-er hat for the seagoers.

J. VERNON WALDER.

Circular Veils.

Circular veils, as the newest in style, and under all circumstances they are exceedingly graceful. When made up of lace, net or chiffon they are sure to be greatly admired. Very smart are they in white or black sprigged lace by the piece, trimmed on the edge by both an entree-doux and an edging. Colored veils have the same lace finish, the trimming faces in most cases being dyed to match the veil's foundation. To wear them correctly they require four hatpins. It goes without saying that we shall soon find sets of hatpins four in number, sold in the large shops. The other day a woman just over was showing her friends at Narragansett the sets of four hatpins she had found in several foreign shops and had selected to be in accord with her different hats. These circular veils dip only an inch or so below the line of the chin and hang evenly all round. They show off the dressing of the hair and do not interfere with the profile or full facial lines, as the closely draped veil does so often. For coolness they are most desirable, as well as for the quickness and ease with which they may be lifted from the brim and thrown back upon the hat—Vogue.

Fancies In Hairdressing.

An illustration of the trimmer, neater style now affected to some extent in hairdressing is given in the very becoming coiffure of the cut.

A double serpentine wave is perhaps the nearest approach to novelty. It extends above the forehead, makes a curved line at the back, returns in modified effect to the temples and ends over each ear. Short, soft half curls are arranged above each eye, and a little bunch of soft curls adorns the top of the coiffure.

Logansport, Ind., Aug. 31.—Admitting freely that she fell a victim to his Chesterfieldian manners and gave him $2,000 with which to perfect his alleged patents, Miss Jennie Hill, a young woman who has been doing business as a clairvoyant in this city for the last six months under the name of "Zingara," says she was one of the 100 wives of Dr. George Witzhoff, under indictment at New York, charged with bigamy.

Daggett, his superintending architect, was ordered to be placed under arrest on charges of manslaughter and criminal negligence in connection with the collapse on Aug. 8 of the central portion of the department store building of the John G. ## Obituary.

Sophonra C. Story, was born in Plattsburg, N. Y., Jan 31, 1830. Her parents moved to Ohio, when she was about five years old. In a year or two they moved to Indiana near Hayden in Jennings county. Her father was a Baptist minister. Losing her mother when about eleven years old she went to Madison to work at that place when about thirteen years old. She united with the M. E. church of which she continued a member for many years. On March 24, 1902 she removed her letter from the M. E. church and joined the Holiness Christian church at Seymour Ind., of which she was a member until her death. She was married to Silas B. Sutton April 19, 1855. He died Aug. 6 1885. She had been living in Indianapolis since May 30 1904. She had been almost helpless for three years. She was a great sufferer but was always saying "The Lords will is all right." She died Aug. 27 1905 aged 75 years 6 months and 27 days. For several years she had been a devoted advocate of holiness, and was greatly interested in helping to establish a Holiness church in Seymour. The funeral was held in the church Tuesday a. m.

Dan Patch.

Every man, woman and child in the state of Indiana has heard of Dan Patch, 156, the world's champion pacer, that has been engaged to pace an exhibition mile at the State Fair on Wednesday, Sept. 13. It is very fitting that this wonderful speeder should be selected as a principal attraction for an Indiana State Fair as he is Indiana horse, notwithstanding that his present owner, M. W. Savage of Minneapolis, does not reside in the Hoosier State. Mr. Savage purchased Dan Patch from Dan R. Messner, jr., of Oxford, Ind., who bred and raised the fast horse, but no money could purchase him from Mr. Savage.

BOGUS CHECKS.

Some Washington Men Suffer Losses.

At the time of the last B. & O. S. W. pay day at Washington a number of counterfeit and forged Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern checks were cashed by Washington business men. The amount these bogus checks foots up to $1250.70 The Washington Herald comments as follows on the fraudulent paper:

"The scheme is similar to the one worked at Cincinnati and at other places on the B. & O. Southwestern also the C. H. & D. railway. Facsimiles of the pay checks used by the railways have been made. The checks then have been filled out presumably by the forgers who have cashed them in at this and various other places. The counterfeit and forgery were not discovered until the checks turned up at the bank of the railroad company at Baltimore.

"The checks are forgeries, even to the painting. Some of the names that the checks are payable to, perhaps all of them, are the names of employees of the railroad here. The endorsements are forged likewise. The identity of the person who cashed the checks is unknown at this time, but the officers are making a close hunt for him.

"There are sixteen checks in all, eight of which were turned into the Washington National bank for collection and eight to the Peoples National bank. The endorsements on the checks will protect the banks from loss."

So far as known no bad checks have turned up at Seymour, but it is rumored that some were cashed at other points. The practice of merchants and saloon men cashing the checks makes the work of the forgers much easier than it would be if all were cashed at the bank where the signatures of the men authorized to sign them are on file so comparison can be made.

RESTORED TO SIGHT AGAIN.

Wonderful Results of Grim's Multi-Center Lenses.

MR. A. B. KEITH, one of Seymour's most prominent grocers, says: "I have suffered for some time with dizziness and intense headaches. I would have spells when everything in front of me would become dark, spots were continually floating before me and I would, at times become so confused I would stagger like a man drunken. The trouble became so aggravated I was compelled to give up my work temporarily.

I had been wearing glasses hoping to relieve my trouble but those I had secured did not answer the purpose. As a last resort I consulted Dr. Grim, Oculist Optician and after having my eyes properly examined and having him fit me with a pair of his Multi-Center Lenses can say that I can now see as well as I ever did, the dizziness and headache have entirely disappeared and I am not troubled any more with those blind and staggering spells. Your glasses certainly worked wonders in my case."

SPECIAL FOR CARNIVAL WEEK.

From now until the end of the Woodmen's carnival week, to introduce more of my work and Grim's Multi-Center Lenses, I will make a reduction of 25 per cent. from my present low prices to all those consulting me for eye aid or glasses. This is an offer all should accept as my work is guaranteed to be satisfactory or your money will be refunded.

(Remember it is dangerous to have your eyes examined or glasses fitted by "so called opticians, optometrists and spectacle peddlers" who do not possess a thorough medical education.)

FREE EYE EXAMINATION, DR. GRIM, Oculist Optician, N. E. Cor. Second and Ewing Sts.

STRONG Again

Is what Mrs. Lucy Stovall, of Tilton, Ga., said after taking Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. Hundreds of other weak women are being restored to perfect health by this remedy. YOU may be well if you will take it. Indigestion causes nearly all the sickness that women have. It deprives the system of nourishment and the delicate organs peculiar to women suffer—weakens, and become diseased.

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure

enables the stomach and digestive organs to digest and assimilate all of the wholesome food that may be eaten. It nourishes the body, and rebuilds the weak organs, restoring health and strength. ## A Warning to Mothers.

Too much care cannot be used with small children during the hot weather of the summer months to guard against bowel troubles. As a rule it is only necessary to give the child a dose of castor oil to correct any disorder of the bowels. Do not use any substitute, but give the old-fashioned castor oil, and see that it is fresh, as rancid oil nauseates and has a tendency to gripe. If this does not check the bowels give Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and then a dose of castor oil, and the disease may be checked in its incipience and all danger avoided. The castor oil and this remedy should be procured at once and kept ready for instant use as soon as the first indications of any bowel trouble appears. This is the most successful treatment known and may be relied upon with implicit confidence even in cases of cholera infantum. For sale by C. W. Milhaus.

A PARALLEL CASE

Pearl Bryan Murder Recalled by Clash Between Courts.

CASS AND JAY AT OUTS

Both Counties Insist on Trying William May and Supreme Court May Have to Decide.

A Similar Clash of Jurisdiction Was Noted in Celebrated Pearl Bryan Case.

Portland, Ind., Aug. 31.—A clash of authority between the courts of Jay and Cass counties is probable in connection with the trial of William May, the Redkey policeman who shot William Purdy, a Pan-Handle detective. Up to this time the Jay county officers are ahead, with the man safe in jail here, but Cass county desires to try him.

Purdy was shot in Jay county, but died in Logansport, Cass county, which makes a case similar to that of Pearl Bryan, the Greencastle girl who was murdered in Cincinnati in 1896. The fatal operation in that case was performed in Cincinnati, but it was believed the girl died in Kentucky, and it was decided that Kentucky had jurisdiction. The Indiana supreme court may be called on to decide where Purdy shall be tried.

KEEPING UP FIGHT

Newton County Court House Case Will Not Down.

Kentland, Ind., Aug. 31.—The people of Morocco have applied for a new injunction in the Newton county courthouse case, and the commissioners have been enjoined from making further appropriation to complete the courthouse at Kentland till the suit is tried in the October term of court. The fight has existed for more than thirty years, and while Morocco has not profited much because of its continued attacks against the county seat, Kentland has been more or less damaged.

He Elames the Circus.

Fairfield, Ind., Aug. 31.—Because he fell from an aerial cycl whirl while performing a wedding ceremony, the Rev. William Sheak of Peru, Ind., will sue the company for $5,000. For the novelty of the affair, James French and Miss Irene Sproder decided to be married in the aerial whirl, and the pastor, being unaccustomed to the exciting ride, fell from the car and sustained a broken arm. He blames the circus for the accident.

Police Burglars.

Petersburg, Ind., Aug. 31.—A gang of burglars entered three houses at Union and, after chloroforming the inmates, took all the money they could find. They secured at the residence of A. D. McRoberts, $54; $14 from Mrs. Hartwell, and $55 from A. D. Colvin. At each place a note in the same handwriting thanked the inmates for keeping still.

Victims Were Chloroformed.

Indianapolis, Aug. 31.—Mr. and Mrs. George W. Brown of Woodruff place were drugged by robbers. Having used ether to best advantage, the intruders ransacked the dwelling at leisure. A diamond brooch, two diamond rings and silverware, all valued at more than $250, were taken.

Dynamiters at Work.

Jolietville, Ind., Aug. 31.—The drug store of William H. McAlvain, which is reported to have borne the reputation of being a "blind tiger," was blown up by dynamite at 11 o'clock last night and the building and the stock completely wrecked.

Hunting Unknown Murderers.

Valparaiso, Ind., Aug. 31.—There are no developments in the Wayne Hale murder. The body of the murdered man was brought here for burial, and the authorities are looking for the unknown murderer.

Evidences of Spitework.

Princeton, Ind., Aug. 31.—Practical jokers hid railroad spikes and scrap iron in sheaves of wheat on the farm of Henry Mans, near here, and a threshing machine was wrecked as a result.

Women Take a Hand.

Bedford, Ind., Aug. 31.—A remonstrance against the granting of license to applicants for the sale of liquor in the town of Oolitic, this county, is being circulated by the women of that city.

Pleads Guilty to Forgery.

Sheridan, Ind., Aug. 31.—Thomas Louks, nineteen years old, was arrested on the charge of forging the name of Joseph Rockey, a farmer, to a check. Louks pleaded guilty.

Distemper in Newton County.

Morocco, Ind., Aug. 31.—Veterinarians who have been studying the disease that is afflicting horses of this county think that it is acute distemper.

Terre Haute, Ind., Aug. 31.—Clyde Hunley, aged two years, died from drinking gasoline.

SEEING AMERICA.

Wonderful Scenic Trip Across Rocky Mountains to Oregon Exposition.

In certain respects the excursions to the Lewis and Clark Centennial Exposition, Portland, Oregon, via Pennsylvania Lines, beginning May 23rd and continuing through the summer, offer advantages never before presented to Exposition visitors. The trip to the Oregon Exposition, in addition to the attractiveness of the extensive exhibits, includes the journey through the scenic wonderland of the Rocky Mountains and the Cascade Range, and what American has not looked forward from the days of the geography class in school to the time when those great sights should be seen in reality? The time was never so favorable as now. The trip may be made less expensive than ever. For only a light difference in fare tourists may extend their trip to San Francisco and Los Angeles. The return trip may be made over a different route, enabling travelers to view much more of the west. For full particulars, fares, dates of special excursions to Portland on account of conventions, through time and passenger service apply to ticket agent of Pennsylvania Lines.
